I allow students to design and perform poems, songs, or drama creations on any topic within the current chapter we are on, they want. They are allowed to skip the chapter test if their artistic endeavors are comprehensive of the chapter material and the grade received is an “A”. The audience grades the student. I also do a grade that is worth 50% of the total score. I am constantly amazed at how creative some of these students can be. It also gives those students that are more creative a chance to help their grade as they may be poor at testing, or not good at memorizing and retaining the book knowledge.
